Master students' satisfaction with educational services

for 2023-2024 academic year in educational program

7M06101 Information Systems

In February 2024, the Center for Quality Management and Accreditation conducted an anonymous electronic survey "Satisfaction of master students with educational services".

The purpose of the study is to measure consumer satisfaction with the quality of services provided by the University.

The subject of the study is the formed ideas of master students about organization of the educational process, the degree of satisfaction with its various characteristics.

The results of the survey were processed and presented in a generalized form with a guarantee of confidentiality of the personal opinions of master's students.

The object of the study is the 1 and 2 year master students.

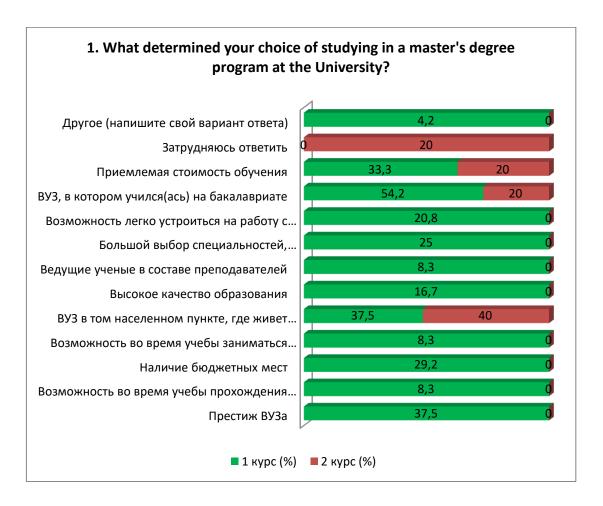

29 respondents took part in the survey, which amounted to 82.6% of the total number of master students.

The following data were obtained during the survey.

1. What determined your choice of studying in a master's degree program at the University? (select 3-4 answer options)

14. If you experience difficulties while studying for a master's degree, what are they caused by? (write):

- I don't know.

Please write what questions you think should be added to this questionnaire to improve the training program, improve the quality of services provided and other areas of the university's activities (The students' answers are presented in the original. The author's spelling and punctuation have been preserved):

- I find it difficult to answer
- Everything is fine
- None.

The following conclusions can be drawn from the survey results:

Factors influencing the choice of a master's degree at the University include proximity to the family's place of residence, continuing education at the previous university, and affordable tuition fees. Additionally, it is worth noting that the prestige of the University, availability of state-funded places, and a large selection of specialties also play a significant role in choosing a master's degree at the University.

The level of satisfaction of master's degree students with the availability of information of various aspects of education is high (97.5%). This indicates that most master's degree students feel well informed about their program of study, professional activities, competencies, opportunities for practice, and their academic supervisors.

The teaching staff of the master's degree program is assessed by master's degree students as follows:

- the knowledge and qualifications of the teachers are rated by 93.8%;
- the pedagogical qualities of the teachers received a positive assessment (83.7%);
- the objectivity and impartiality of assessments are rated highly, 93.8% of master's degree students expressed satisfaction with this indicator;
 - the teaching methods used by teachers are satisfactory for 77.5% of master's students.

The majority (65%) of mastes students develop their plan independently under the supervision of their supervisor. Some (16.3%) develop the plan independently, and the supervisor signs it without exerting significant influence. 6.2% of master students do not participate in making the plan, and 8.4% consider their participation formal due to difficulties in independently formulating ideas. Another 4.1% of master students find it difficult to answer whose initiative was greater - theirs or their supervisor's.

Master students rated their satisfaction with the help of their supervisor in writing their master's thesis at 95.8%, which indicates a high level of satisfaction and successful cooperation between master's students and supervisors in the learning process.

Indicators of a high scientific level of the University include the following:

- participation in international research projects (50.9%) indicates the university's active cooperation with the international scientific community and its contribution to global research;
- involvement of master students in research projects (46.7%) shows that master's students are actively involved in research, which contributes to their professional development;
- the updated material and technical base (37.1%) indicates the availability of modern equipment and infrastructure for conducting research at a high level;
- the competent teaching staff (35%) indicates the qualifications and experience of teachers, which is a key factor in ensuring high-quality education and research.

The majority of students (40.8%) have an intermediate level of foreign language proficiency, while a significant proportion (36.2%) can express themselves freely. This indicates the effectiveness of foreign language teaching methods, but also emphasizes the need for further improvement of programs for those who are just starting to learn or have a conversational level.

The University successfully organizes the educational process, ensuring a high degree of satisfaction of master students with living conditions, free time, catering and industrial practice. This contributes to the creation of a favorable educational environment and has a positive effect on the reputation of the education institution.

It is important to note that the low level of involvement of master students in research projects can negatively affect the scientific development of the University. Understanding the reasons for this lack of involvement and developing activities to stimulate participation can improve the situation.

Recommendations:

The head of the department should familiarize and discuss the results of the survey with the staff and master students, if necessary, to develop an action plan to improve the quality of educational services.

Master students can request the results of the survey by e-mail from the Quality Management and Accreditation Center cqma_kstu@mail.ru.
